

SETTLE CONTEST OVER LOUISIANA

Two Delegations to be Seated
—Each With but Half a Vote.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The Louisiana delegate contest which has caused the republican national committee more concern than any other was settled Sunday when an amicable agreement was reached whereby both delegations will be seated, each with half a vote. The agreement will be announced when the national committee resumes the hearing of contests at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

The agreement contemplates also the resignation of Victor Lohel, as national committeeman from Louisiana. Each delegation has a candidate for the place, but it was said Sunday the choice probably would go to Armand Romain of New Orleans, who is a member of the delegation.

The contesting delegation asserted its right to appear in the convention on the ground that the Louisiana state convention was held in a hotel from which negroes were barred. Immediately after the convention a rival state convention was formed and at a primary election the contesting delegation was chosen.

Condemn "Lily Whites."

National Committee men Fred W. Estabrook of New Hampshire, T. K. Neidringhaus of Missouri, and Ralph E. Williams of Oregon acted as intermediaries between the contending factions and formulated the agreement which ended the contest. Members of the contesting delegation have asked the national committee to pass a resolution condemning so-called "lily whiteness" which, it is charged, caused the dispute.

The Georgia contest, which was decided on Thursday and Friday will be carried before the credentials committee, it was announced by members of the so-called Johnson faction, to which the national committee gave five seats, 11 going to the Jackson faction.

Sidelights on the REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The hundreds of politicians and delegates here for the convention had a fellow feeling today for travelers in the arid wastes of the Sahara, and for Pershing's boys as they toil through the thirst-producing sand dunes of Chihuahua.

After a warm and exceedingly dry Sunday, they awoke today to find a municipal election in progress, entailing more torrid hours.

"Water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink!" wailed the anvil chorus.

Fifty or more bedraggled Pennsylvanians followed Sen. Boies Penrose today borrowed washstands and bath rooms to freshen up their appearance after a sleepless night. The Pennsylvanians spent the dark hours wandering through hotel corridors and dozing on street corners. When they arrived they discovered that their representative had reserved rooms for them at a leading hotel—but he had reserved them beginning Wednesday. From now until Wednesday they will spend the time looking for the man that made the reservations.

"Big Steve" of Colorado, otherwise Former National Committeeman Archie M. Stevenson, arrived in Chicago wearing a broad smile and a Roosevelt button. In view of the fact that "Big Steve's" 250 pounds of weight was largely responsible for the efficiency of the steamroller which flattened out the Roosevelt delegates in 1912, his friends were curious.

"How does it feel to be for T. R.?" the Colorado heavyweight was asked.

"I worried myself sick about swallowing that Roosevelt end," he grinned, "but having swallowed it, believe me its delicious."

The favorite sons of the favorite sons came to Chicago today to work for their dads. Three sons of former Vice Pres. Fairbanks circulated among the delegates and the son of Sen. John W. Weeks took charge of his father's headquarters. Also Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., got into the melee.

William A. Steel of Cordova, Alaska, believes he has the long distance record among the hundreds of hundreds of newspapermen here for the national convention. He is editor of the Daily Alaskan, at Cordova, and the Leader at Chitna, Alaska, and manager of the Alaska Press association.

"Alaska seems to be for Hughes, although our delegates came down unimpressed," he said.

Victor Rosewater of Nebraska is one of the few of the "Old Guard" of 1912 "steam-roller" days who does not mince words.

"Who will be nominated?" he was asked.

"Charles E. Hughes. It looks certain for him."

The photographer who made the two big pictures of Sen. L. V. Sherman, Illinois' candidate for the nomination for the presidency, is in for a lot of trouble. He polished up the photographs so that practically all the Lincolnian features of the Illinois candidate are missing. And one of the best Sherman campaign phrases is:

"He is the man who looks like Lincoln."

There was much joy on S. State st. Sunday. The colored delegates from the south were received with open arms in the Negro sections on the south side, and scenes rivaling the home-coming of Jack Johnson were enacted. Reception committees have been appointed to wine and dine the delegates until the convention closes.

Sen. Weeks is an active candidate campaigner on his own behalf in the headquarters which he will share with the Bay State delegation in the Congress hotel. The senator had the proverbial box of cigars for the men delegates.

Several members of the Kansas delegation arrived today and said the others would be on in the morning. Some said the delegation will be for Weeks and that there is no chance of its being for Roosevelt.

15,000 MEXICANS ARE AGAINST INTERVENTION

LAREDO, Texas, June 5.—As a protest against "possible American intervention" in Mexico, 15,000 Mexicans paraded Sunday through the streets of Monterey. Anti-American sentiment was freely expressed in disparaging remarks and yells, according to reports reaching the border.

The parade resulted from a call issued in a circular letter calling attention of Mexicans to the possibility of "Americans trespassing the sovereignty of Mexico" and calling upon the rank and file of Mexican citizens to show their patriotism and demonstrate the number upon which the Mexican government could depend in event their services were needed.

The parade included many of the better class of Mexicans and many women and children.

Kaiser Might Proud of Fleet

AMSTERDAM, June 5, via London.—A telegram from Emperor William in reply to a message of congratulation upon the "grand victory of our high seas fleet over a greatly superior English battle fleet" was read at a sitting of the Prussian diet by Count Schwerin, the president.

"With you," said the emperor, "I am proud of our mighty fleet, which by this feat of arms has proved it is an even match for a superior enemy."

EL PASO, Texas, June 5.—Troops stationed at Fort Bliss and neighboring points will participate in a public parade here Wednesday "for those interested in the welfare of El Paso," according to an announcement by Gen. George Bell, commanding officer, Sunday night, with a view of convincing the people that the military force is fully competent to meet any eventuality.

Gen. Bell in his public statement said:

"No trouble of any kind is anticipated, but so many citizens have offered their services to the commanding general of the El Paso district in case of riots or outside trouble that it is believed necessary to call attention to the fact that the United States troops in this district are fully competent without any assistance other than afforded by your municipal and state authorities to meet any contingency that may occur within the city or outside, or in both places."

"The only assistance desired and expected from individuals is that in case of rioting or other disturbances necessitating the use of military, each individual excepting doctors and clergymen in the discharge of their duties, will keep off the streets and will remain at home or at his place of business during the disturbance."

Gen. Bell added that in case of trouble all armed civilians would be disarmed and treated with suspicion.
